A CENTURY OF HIGHER EDUCATION: Classical Citadel to Collegiate Colossus

Edited by WILLIAM W. BRICKMAN, Professor of Educational History and Comparative Education, Graduate School of Education, University of Pennsylvania, and STANLEY LEHRER, Managing Editor, School and Society

The story of the dynamic transformation of higher education from a citadel of limited curricular offerings to a colossus of learning. Spans the history of higher education, 1862-1962, examining legal developments, the state university, the liberal arts college, the land-grant college, the junior and community college, the church-related college, teacher education, graduate education, higher education of women, Negro higher education, and international relations in higher education. Includes a chronology of higher education in and outside of the U. S. and a bibliography of the history of U. S. higher education. Named one of the "Outstanding Education Books of 1962" in the field of higher education by the Education Department of the Enoch Pratt Free Library of Baltimore, as reported in the NEA Journal. "Scholarly contributions. . . ."—Saturday Review. "The chapters provide fresh insights and dispel prevailing illusions. . . . The editors planned well. . . . The result is a book and not merely a compilation."— EDGAR B. WESLEY in Phi Delta Kappan

THE COUNTDOWN ON SEGREGATED EDUCATION

Edited by WILLIAM W. BRICKMAN and STANLEY LEHRER

Probes into the history, current situation, and possible future of segregated education in the U. S., South Africa, and other countries. "Illuminates the problem and places it in both historical and international perspective. . . . The editors are calm, thoughtful, and careful with their facts. . . . This book is an important contribution to the growing literature on a complex subject."—PAUL WOODRING, Education Editor, Saturday Review. "Worth reading and pondering. . . . An authoritative examination of the history of racial segregation here and abroad, with discussions of the legal and social problems involved in desegregating the schools. . . . Best Book on Problems of Desegregation."—Saturday Review

RELIGION, GOVERNMENT, AND EDUCATION

Edited by WILLIAM W. BRICKMAN and STANLEY LEHRER

Examines the past problems, legal aspects, and present controversies concerning relations of church, state, and school in the U. S. and other countries, including communist nations. In addition to tracing notable events involving church and state in education from Biblical times to the 1960's, the editors present various religious viewpoints on the subject, selections from official documents, and arguments for and against government aid to religious schools. "A fresh look at the problem. . . . As a reference collection of basic facts and clearly stated points of view, the volume will be most useful to many concerned with the subject."—Saturday Review. "Comprehensive. . . . Rarely does one find so much pertinent material on this urgent present problem in a single volume. It should have wide circulation."—E. I. F. WILLIAMS, Editor, Educational Forum. "Timely . . . encyclopedic in its scope. . . . The information and reasoning of this book can become instruments of mutual understanding."—Teachers College Record. "Educational leaders have an obligation to read this. . . ."—STANLEY ELAM, Editor, Phi Delta Kappan

INTRODUCTION TO EDUCATIONAL MEASUREMENT

Second Edition

Victor H. Noll, Michigan State University

Like the First Edition, this introductory text offers a foundation in principles of measurement and elementary statistical methods, familiarity with published standardized tests, basic understanding and skill in constructing tests for local use, and instruction in the interpretation and application of the results of measurement. New material includes recent developments in educational measurement, revised test descriptions and analyses, up-dated chapter bibliographies, new "Learning Exercises", and expanded treatment of test interpretation. Instructor's Manual to be available for Summer 1965 classes.

CHANGE AND CHALLENGE IN AMERICAN EDUCATION

James E. Russell, Educational Policies Commission

An articulate analysis of the modern educational dilemma and a sound prescription for its solution, written by an expert in the field. Mr. Russell claims we must change our conventional modes of "practical" pedagogy or else face mass unemployment and social unrest. He maintains that the central role of education must be to develop the rational potential and theoretical insights of all men.

THE SCHOOL PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATOR

R. Oliver Gibson, State University of New York at Buffalo, and Herold C. Hunt, Harvard University

This book deals broadly with the problems of selecting and administering personnel in the educational enterprise as well as maintaining conditions and practices that make possible outstanding performance by such personnel. A unique aspect of the book is the authors' identification of concepts and problems in educational administration with similar concepts and problems in business, government, the military, and other fields of administration.
